PSBU Community and Social Responsibility Policy

PSBU is actively involved in supporting the local community through various outreach and educational initiatives that foster both financial and social sustainability. One of the key ways PSBU contributes to the local community is by regularly sending representatives to outlying and rural areas. These outreach events often include teaching classes to children and providing essential educational materials such as books, teaching resources, and learning materials. This not only supports the educational development of young students in these communities but also equips them with the foundation needed for future sustainable careers.

Additionally, many PSBU students are engaged in teacher training programs. As part of their training, these students contribute directly to community education in outlying regions, helping to build a cycle of knowledge and skills that will benefit these communities in the long term. These activities serve as both an educational resource and a form of mentorship, encouraging younger students to continue their education and preparing them for future professional success.

PSBU's teacher training programs also have a wider social impact by improving the quality of education in under-resourced areas, thereby contributing to the development of sustainable social structures within the community. By fostering education in this way, PSBU supports long-term community resilience and economic growth.

Through these combined efforts—education, mentorship, and resource provision—PSBU is playing an important role in helping local communities establish a sustainable future. These initiatives are directly aligned with SDG 1: No Poverty, as they contribute to reducing poverty by equipping individuals with the skills and knowledge necessary to start financially and socially sustainable ventures.
